Arrival of the Saraca.

The British iron bark Saraca, Captain George Watt, which arrived and anchored off port last Friday 128 days from Liverpool, was towed into port on Saturday morning and is now lying at the Pacific Mail Company's wharf, where she will discharge her cargo of general merchandise. Chief officer John Watt gives us the following report of the passage: Sailed from Liverpool November 9th. Experienced pleasant weather to Cape Horn, which was reached December 30th, 51 days out. The equator in the Atlantic was crossed on December from Waialua and Waianae on Saturday, and 2d, 23 days out in longitude 28 deg. W. Christmas day was observed in latitude 50 deg. S. Passed through the Straits of La Maire December 20th, and the followidg day was in the meridian of Cape Horn. At Cape Horn a succession of heavy gales from W N W to W S W was experienced, lasting for nearly fifteen days, during which time the wheelhouse was slightly damaged. Thence had northerly winds for a month. Crossed 50 deg. S in the Pacific January 16th. The Saraca was 22 days in rounding Cape Horn from 50 deg. S to 50 deg. S. Took the south-west trades in 25 deg. S. Crossed the equator in the Pacific, March 2d, 114 days out. Thence had fresh strong northwest trades and squally weather till these islands were sighted, when a heavy gale was encountered. Arrived off Oahu March 16th. All well on board. The following vessels were spoken by the Saraca on the voyage hither: December 7th, latitude 18 S and longitude 36 W, New Zealand steamer Coptic, from New Zealand for London. All well. January 3d, in latitude 56 S and longitude 66 W, British bark British India, 78 days out from Iquique, Chiti, for Cardiff. The Saraca was built at Dumbarton on the Clyde, over twelve years ago, and is of 837 tons register and deceased, whether secured by mortgage or otherwise, are notified to present the same duly veridead weight. The Saraca has a large, well ventilated and elegant cabin. She brings nearly 1,500 tons general merchandise to Messrs. Theo. H. Davies & Co., and after unloading cargo at this port, will leave for San Francisco with a full cargo of sugar.

Fine Display of Embroidery.

One of the finest displays of embroideries to be seen is at the Popular Millinery House, of which N. S. Sachs is proprietor. There is an endless variety of embroidery edgings, ladies' embroidered skirts flounces, children's embroidered holoku lengths, all-over embroideries, and fine box suits. Our attention was attracted by the fine display in the show window, which is stacked with embroideries, and our curiosity then led us in the store. Here the display is simply immense-the quantity and assortment cannot be equalled. These goods were imported direct from Europe, thereby saving the U.S. duty, and are sold at such low prices that his large stock will soon be greatly diminished, and it will certainly pay the ladies of Honolulu to stop and have a look there before purchasing goods of that description elsewhere.

Funeral of the Late L. Aholo.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Luther Aholo took place from his late residence, Beretania street. Manase, a native bearing the deceased's two decorations, the hearse and on either side pall-bearers, chief mourners and friends. At the church the service was read by the Rev. H. H. Parker, and the remains were interred in the cemetery near the Lunalilo Mausoleum.

The deceased was a Knight Companion of the Royal Order of Kalakaua and a Grand Officer of the Royal Order Crown of Hawaii.

Suicide of A. G. Ellis.

A dispatch from Los Angeles, dated March 3d, says that Albert G. Ellis, formerly connected with E. P. Adams & Co., auctioneers, took a dose of laudanum on 2d, from which he died. Eight dollars were found on him. He left no word, and no cause for the deed is known. An inquest was held, but the jury was unable to decide whether death was intentional or not.

The deceased, who was in Honolulu about four months ago, has a father living in Green Bay, Wis., where he is a respected citizen, and formerly was a Judge. Mrs. Ellis and two children live with her relative in Providence, R. I.
